

SOUTH AMERICAN PAMPAS, NORTH AMERICAN PLAINS, DOWN UNDER, CAT
CANYON, AND KANSAS WATERS
VISUAL NARRATIVE

Today I am visiting the Lee Richardson Zoo.
The Zoo is free to walk through. I will not have to pay or speak to anyone to enter the zoo.

As I walk into the zoo, I will see the zoo's gift shop, it is called the Safari Shoppe, I can go in if it is open and I want to.

I may smell food as I walk by.

I will also see a sign that has the zoo's guidelines on it for review.

I may see and hear other people. I may hear music from the shop or the pool next door.

WELCOME!

PLEASE FOLLOW THE GUIDELINES BELOW

A SAFE ZOO STARTS WITH YOU!

Climbing or standing on fences or barriers is unsafe and could lead to injuries. If you drop an item over the fence, contact a staff member to help you retrieve it.

Respect the animals' habitats and enjoy them peacefully. Any harassment towards an animal or their habitat is hazardous to both you and the animal.

Help preserve the zoo grounds. Stay on pathways and respect animal and plant life. Throw away trash in trash bins or recycle.

The zoo provides special diets for the animals, feeding them other food items could make them sick. Take part in staff guided feeding opportunities such as "Giraffe Encounters" or utilize duck and fish pond feeders.

Keep drones and other motorized flying items as well as fireworks out of the zoo.

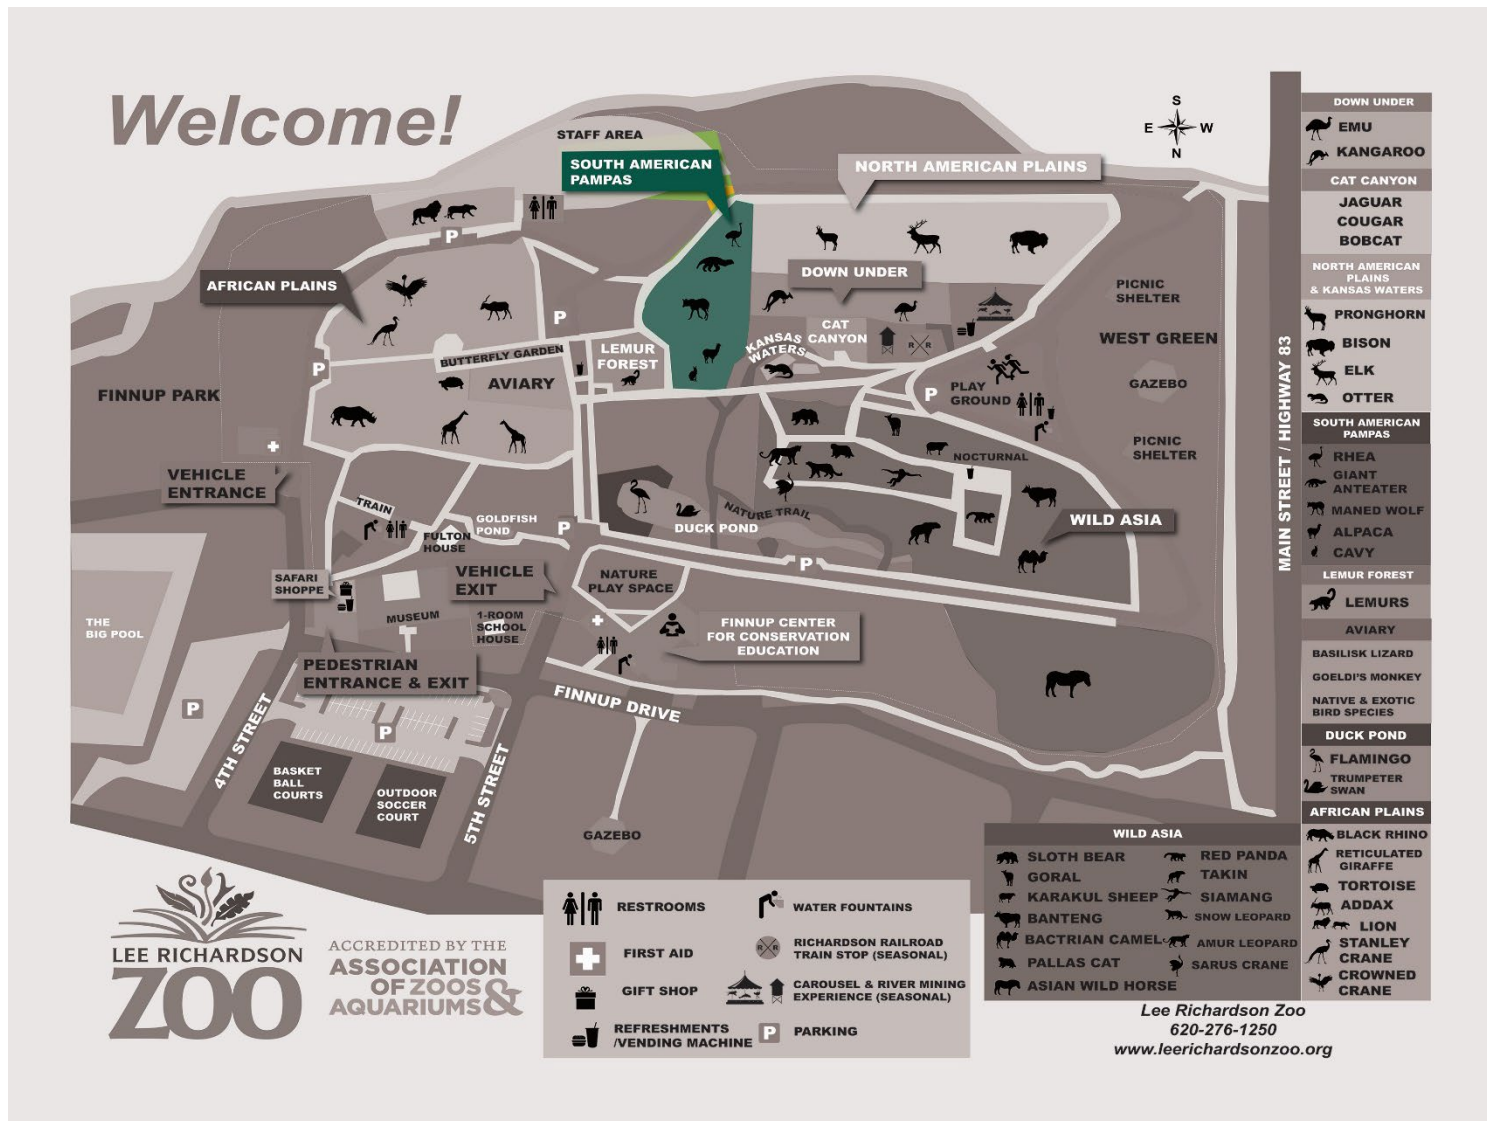

Please leave pets of any kind at home. Never leave your pet unattended in a vehicle.

ENJOY YOUR VISIT!

I may see people sitting on benches, walking, riding bikes, or scooters.
A large old train, called “Two Bits” is stationed at the zoo, and the restrooms are nearby.

The first area I'm visiting is known as "South American Pampas".

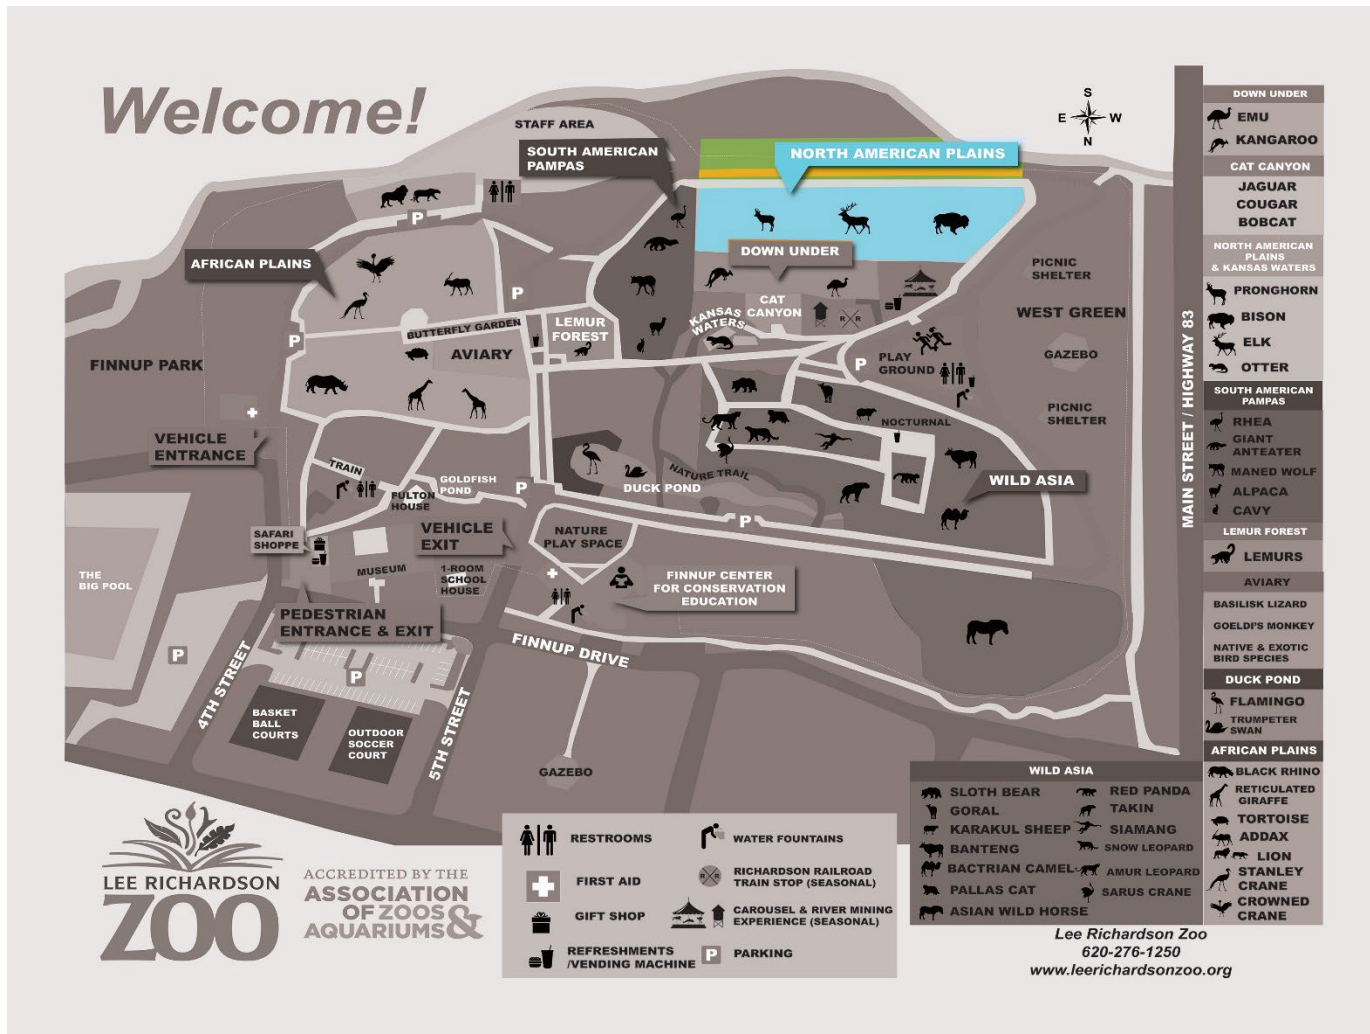

In this area of the zoo, I will see many different types of animals.

Alpaca, cavy, maned wolf, giant anteater, and rhea. I may notice new smells by these animals.

It is important that I stay on the designated paths and stay off and behind fences.

Another area I can visit is known as the “North American Plains”.

This area of the zoo is home to pronghorn, elk, and bison.

The pathway along these habitats is lined with trees and runs alongside the road.

I may notice shadows and bright spots.

I may hear vehicles driving by.

I may see kangaroos in the “Down Under” area.

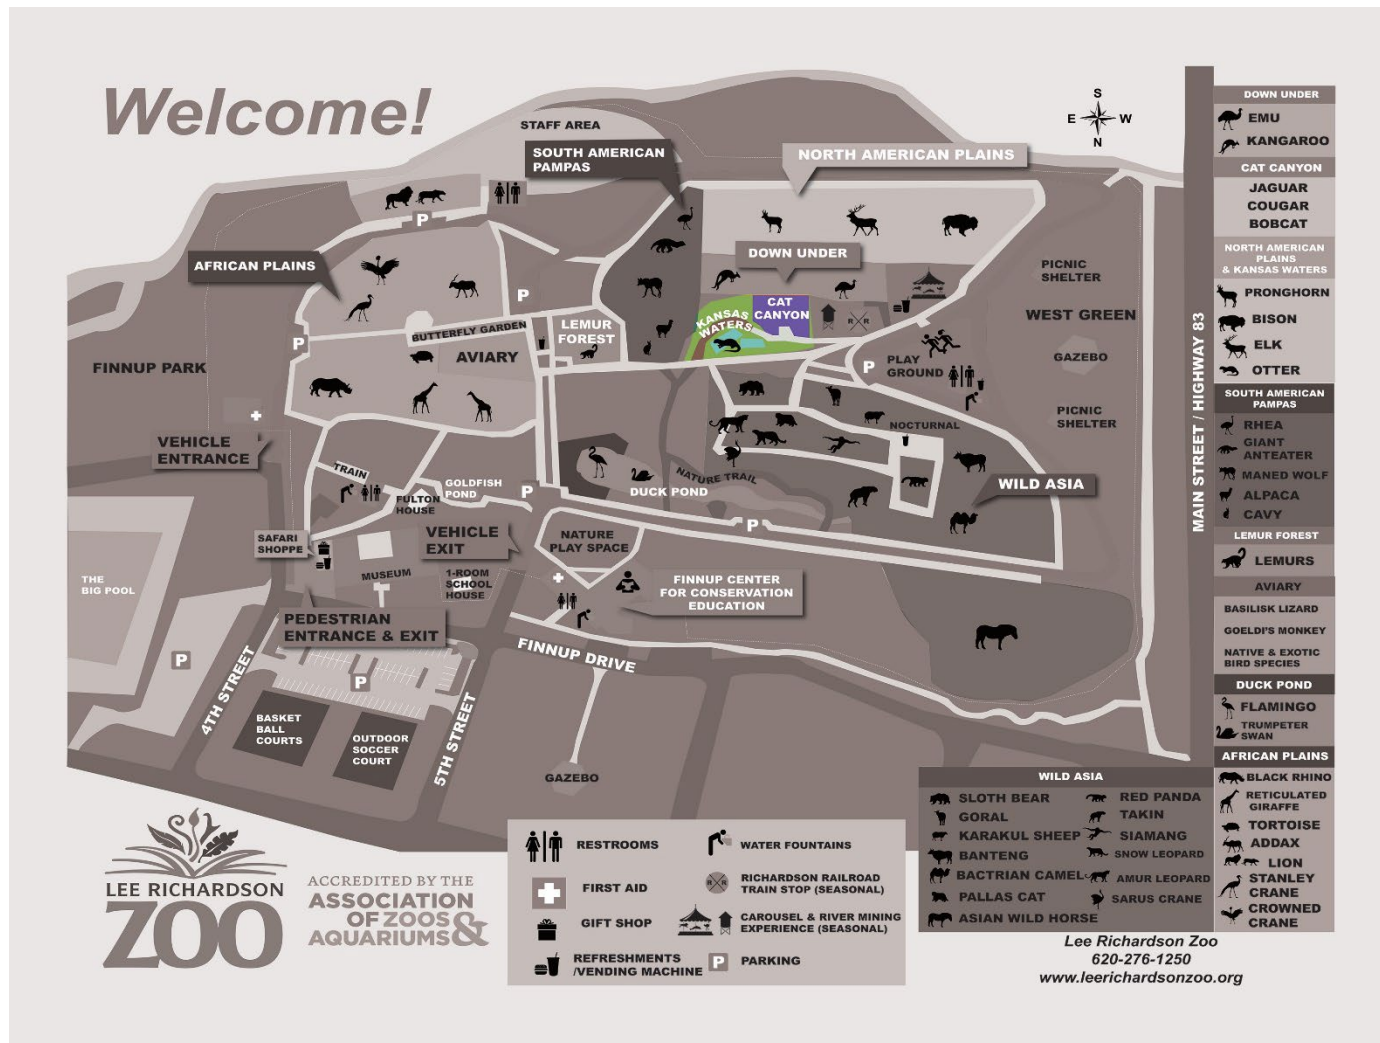

The train, Wild Dog Stop, mine sluice, and carousel are available seasonally.

During the warmer seasons, there may be several zoo guests in this area.

I may hear people talking, kids playing, music, a train whistle or bell, water running, and many more noises.

“Cat Canyon” and “Kansas Waters” habitats are nearby.

Cat Canyon is home to three different species of cat.
Bobcats, jaguars, and cougars live here.

The viewing area in Cat Canyon is covered and offers shaded areas.
I may notice that sounds echo in this area and may seem louder.
It is important that I do not tap or bang on the glass windows.

Between Cat Canyon and Kansas Waters is a swift fox habitat.
I may notice new smells when I walk by this habitat.

Kansas Waters is home to North American River otters and has many interactive signs throughout this area.

The pathway is gravel and may feel different under my feet.

I may hear water splashing and smell new scents in this area.

I may see signs that tell me how to be safe when visiting or signs that give more information about the zoo or the animals.

I will be safe, and the animals will be safe, too.

Animal is under veterinary care.

Thank you
for your concern.

Area Currently Under Maintenance

Thank you for visiting

Staff
Entrance
Only

I may see zoo staff working in or around habitats. I may see and hear mowers or other tools in use. Staff members can tell me more about the zoo and the animals or assist me if I need help.

Once I finish visiting these areas, I can go back to the entrance of the zoo and finish my visit, or I can explore other areas of the zoo.

THANK YOU FOR VISITING!
